CHARTER CONTEST AT GRIPS; SUBWAY JOB IS DELAYED

PURPOSES OF KU KLUX KLAN DISCUSSED HERE BY VISITING PREACHER

The Bible, the American flag and the flaming torch are the three symbols upon which the organization of the Ku Klux Klan is based. This was the statement made last night by Dr. L. A. Brown of Georgia who addressed residents of Richmond at the Richmond Clubhouse in the interpretation of the K. K. K. The hall was crowded to capacity. Members of the order garbed in the flowing robes of white, their faces behind the visors, were seated on the platform during the address.

Firm for United States

Members of the Ku Klux Klan wouldn't give up the United States for all the countries of the world tied in a bundle, according to Brown who asked that fair treatment be given the order by the people of the United States.

"No class has a right to more privileges than another group and if there are black sheep in the membership of the K. K. K., so are there black sheep in the other organizations of the country, and yet they are not barred from meeting.

Will Uphold Constitution

"Men joining the K. K. K. vow to uphold the constitution of the United States, revere and respect the American flag, promise to help enforce the laws, protect the women and swear never to take part in mob violence.

"The organization is one hundred per cent American. It refuses membership to Japanese, Chinese and negroes. It is a white man's order. Men of the Jewish religion are barred because of the vow members are required to take regarding the New Testament and its teachings.

"If we are to render assistance and stand as the greatest nation of the world, second to none, we have to do it as a white man's country. Mixture doesn't do good to any. Yet the Klan does not refuse assistance to the needy of any race, color or creed. It offers its help to those in trouble without question.

Opposed to 'Straddlers'

"We don't admire the man on both sides of the fence; we admire the man who stands up for what he thinks. We believe that man has the right to worship God as he thinks right.

"The Ku Klux Klan is going to continue as it has been doing. The members desire to keep their business to themselves and they desire to do their own work in their own way."

Brown concluded his address with the plea that regardless of what the people think of the order he represents, that they hold fast to the fundamental principles for which our forefathers fought.

Jury Fixes No Blame In Auto Death

A coroner's jury in the court of Coroner Charles F. Donnelly last night declined to fix responsibility for the death of John A. Tauckert, who died as result of injuries incurred when an automobile in which he was riding on the evening of November 27th, struck a machine that had been parked without lights.

The jury, of which E. L. Davis was foreman, said in their finding that Tauckert died from hemorrhage of the brain—basal fracture of the skull, caused by the overturning of an automobile in which he was riding, which struck a machine on the streets without lights.

J. B. Odesto was driving the car in which Tauckert was riding. The death car is said to have been registered in the name of Dr. H. N. Belgium, and was standing in Garrard Boulevard, 300 feet south of Ohio, and was reported to have been placed there by proprietors of a garage in which it had been placed for repairs.

In the case of Theodore Hooton, the youth who was killed by Southern Pacific Train No. 109, last week, the jury found death was accidental, but fixed no responsibility. Hooton's hat was found upon the train's cowcatcher as it pulled into the Oakland mole.

Domitric Gallo's death was due to a fracture of the skull and jawbone and injury to the brain, caused by the accidental overturning of an auto in which he was riding, and no responsibility fixed according to the jury.

Coroner Donnelly was ably assisted by Miss Henrietta A. Peaterson, a competent stenographer of unusual attainments.

LICENSED TO WED

Clarence Gengler, 29, and Irma D. Robert, 18, both of Richmond, were issued a marriage license in Oakland, Saturday.

AVENUE WAS LIKE RIVER LAST NIGHT

A line of light ferries or perhaps some fast motor boats could have done a landoffice business and would have proven a blessed utility along Macdonald avenue last night from Ninth street to Fourteenth.

The water raced along in swirling eddies, and for caprices and temperamental turns had Tennyson's "Brook" and George Elliot's stream in "The Mill on the Floss" backed up.

Theater goers and other pedestrians were forced to wade over their shoe tops or detour for blocks in reaching their destinations.

Automobiles were marooned in front of the Record-Herald office and street cars crept through the floods at funeral pace.

The streets were deserted early in the evening.

The "lone cop" on his beat turning door knobs and pounding the concrete with his "dogs," prowling cats, ambitious frogs, happy in their element, and a few benighted souls earning their bread on the "graveyard shift" were the only animate objects abroad after 11 o'clock.

It was a great night for sitting about the hearthstone popping corn, roasting chestnuts and listening to folk stories and legend of days of sunshine along the Open Road.

The weather man says, "probably rain today" but you take it from us, Old Top, and tuck the raincoat in with your lunch, and throw the old rubbers across your shoulder.

Arc Light Asked; One Is Granted

The petition of residents for a street light at the corner of Twelfth and Clinton streets was referred to the light committee for one week, by council last evening.

On the recommendation of the light committee a street light was ordered installed at the corner of San Pablo and Esmond avenues.

Voters Urged To Cast Ballots For First 15 Today

This is Freeholders' Election Day. Get out and vote, and see that everyone of your friends do the same.

Don't stay at home and then complain about the results. If you don't vote, you have no right to criticize. You have the power in your hands to choose who will frame a new charter for you.

This is an important matter, for it means the future government of the city.

The Conservative Freeholders' Charter League has endorsed a ticket that should be elected today.

Is made up of fifteen men and women, the first fifteen to appear on the ballot.

All of them are prominent in civic and business life. They are your neighbors and friends.

You have confidence in them; and the duty of framing a new charter can safely be placed in their hands.

These fifteen have no special form of charter in mind; they have prepared no charter before they are elected, but do pledge themselves when elected today, that they will give their best efforts to having prepared the form of a new charter that the people of Richmond desire.

It is their desire to serve the people of Richmond and not any special interests. They will secure charters from cities in all parts of the United States. Public meetings will be held, and the taxpayers and electors of this city will be invited to attend these meetings, and offer suggestions.

They stand for economy in government, and are opposed to increasing the limit for which the city may bond itself.

The first fifteen on the ballot stand for a Richmond government by Richmond people.

Turn out in force today and vote, and when you go to the polls place a cross after the first fifteen names on the ballot, which are as follows:

WALTER T. HELMS,
MATTIE A. CHANDLER,
TSAR N. CALFEE,
WILLIAM W. SCOTT,
WILLIAM L. LANE,
DR. CLARK L. ABBOTT,
DAN NOZIGLIA,

EDWARD J. GARRARD,
WM. J. RICHARDS, JR.,
JOHN P. STROM,
ANNA BELLE JARVIS,
ARCHIBALD H. CAMPBELL,
VIRGIL A. FENNER,
GEORGE B. FREDENBURG,
RICHARD E. SLATTERY.

CONTRACTOR IS GIVEN MORE TIME ON WORK

On account of the work being delayed by the stormy weather, the council last evening granted L. L. Page a thirty-day extension on his contract for the improvement of the subway.

Subway discussion brought out the fact that when the concrete wall on the north side was put in, there were fanges at the bottom, and in lowering the grade, these fanges are left standing high. They did not show in the blue prints of the original work.

It was decided that these fanges will have to be eliminated, and the engineer stated the cost would be about $800. It was decided to get in communication with the officials of the Southern Pacific regarding the matter.

MUSIC TONIGHT ON ELKS' BILL

The committee in charge of the entertainment features of the Richmond Elks last night were informed by H. A. Snow, naturalist and big game hunter, that he will be unable to fill his engagement to lecture and show his pictures here tonight owing to a severe cold which seems to be something like laryngitis, making it impossible for him to speak.

Snow, whose pictures, "Hunting Big game in Africa, with Gun and Camera," is attracting large crowds to the Century theater in San Francisco, has been forced to cancel several engagements to speak, but gave the good tidings to the committee of Elks that at a later date he will be happy to talk to the Elks.

Four Talented Musicians
The committee have done the next best thing possible, and announce four talented musicians, including three from Berkeley and Miss Marjorie Sullivan of this city. Miss Sullivan is said to have a voice of purity and charm. She will be accompanied by Miss Vivian LaSelle, at the piano.

The committee is composed of J. W. Wilkerson, chairman; Way Neville and W. B. Jenkins.
There will be balloting upon a large number of applicants this evening.

The usual substantial and palatable supper will be served by the direction of Steward Max Sheahan.

Gordon Wants Big Crowd
Exalted Ruler Frank Gordon would like to see the standing room only sign hoisted over the door of the lodge room. He probably will have some interesting message on the subject of the Christmas tree for the kiddies.

Mrs. Amy F. Fray Is Given Decree

An interlocutory decree of divorce from August Charles Fray was granted to Mrs. Amy Freeman Fray at Martinez yesterday. A cross-complaint to the complaint of Fray was filed by Mrs. Fray charging cruelty.

POULTRYMEN NAME OFFICERS

At last night's meeting of the Richmond Poultry Producers' Association for all the counties of the world, the following were elected officers for the coming year: J. A. Heck, president; J. T. Gough, first vice-president; C. D. Rogers, second vice-president; C. W. W. St. John, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. A. C. Zumwalt, historian; E. R. Edlund, P. D. Nelson and J. H. Behr, directors.

At the next meeting, which will be held on Tuesday evening, December 26, instead of on Monday the 25th, that day being Christmas, the officers will be installed and a banquet will be served.

A large feed order was placed last night.

Fred M. Hunter in Auto Mishap

Fred M. Hunter, superintendent of schools of Oakland, and his aunt, Mrs. Emma Winster, were slightly injured in an automobile accident early yesterday. The accident occurred in Broadway Terrace, and is said to have been caused by Hunter's machine turning over when rammed by another automobile.

Hunter is well known in Richmond, where he is an occasional visitor. Only last week he addressed the Richmond Rotary Club.

COUNCIL HELD SHORT SESSION

On account of the extremely stormy weather last evening, the session held by the city council was but a short one, and but little business was transacted.

The report of Police Judge Odell showed that during the past month $445 had been collected in fines and 52 cases handled.

The report of the city tax collector showed, that during the same period there had been collected as taxes and licenses the sum of $194,036.73.

THE WAY OUT

Every man knows, or should know, his own business. It is his task to care for his own business, to nourish it, to feed it brains, his own and those of others available to him by employment or by reading of newspapers, books, and other publications which bear upon his business, comments the Chicago Journal of Commerce. "Brains" is the meat a business grows great upon. Wealth is not wholly the product of labor. Talent, that is to say brains, must direct labor, must oversee business, must guard and give impetus to industrial energy, to promote prosperity, and create wealth. The thinker has multiplied resources, increased wealth, added to the comfort of men, supplied a thousand utilities which have bettered the conditions under which men live, as all the labor of ancient times did not and could not do.

Hundreds of thousands toiled year in and year out to build the pyramids, and did not increase the wealth of the world one dollar. Instead, that work to gratify the vanity of Egyptian despots drained the wealth and resources of the country. The men who invented the steam engine, the steamboat, the railroad, the telegraph, the telephone, the automobile, money, banking, and all the commercial facilities and manufacturing machinery of the past two hundred years, created more wealth, greater resources and finer blessings for mankind than mere labor, minus brains, could produce in ten thousand years.

At the present time, following the great-out of wars and the most general setback for business the world has known, there is but one way to escape from reduced resources. It is for each business man, and this includes the farmer, the manufacturer, the merchant, the banker, the railroad operator, the mine owner and the head of every other business necessary to the security and convenience and unobstructed operation of commercial affairs, to set his own particular house in order by giving it his best thought and most incessant effort. Waiting for Government or somebody else to make the ways of business straight, will not turn the trick. Each business man must do it for himself.

DOG'S RIGHTS IN EUROPE.

In Venice a dog can go anywhere with his master, even to the hotel table, where, if paid for at the same rate as his master, he may take his food. If he accompanies the boss on one of the noisy steamers that destroy the poetry of the Grand Canal, he must be paid for exactly as if he were a human being, states the New York Herald.

All over the continent of Europe the rights of people with dogs are recognized—at a price. One can take a dog into any compartment of a train, including the wagon-lit, but first it is necessary to buy a third-class ticket for him. In Italy he travels a little more cheaply. There when one is getting his baggage weighed and paying for the billet, one buys another for the dog, which costs one-half of third-class rate. Provided with this ticket the dog is admitted to wherever his master goes.

LUCKY GEORGE

Every time Representative George Holden Tinkham, of Massachusetts, is re-elected to the House he has a loud and long laugh for the landlords of Washington. He came into his good fortune in 1916, when a friend sought his advice on the selection of a site for a hotel. The friend acted upon Mr. Tinkham's advice, and was so well pleased with the site that he offered the representative any apartment in the new building, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. As a special measure of appreciation he also offered to place in the lease a clause providing that he should retain the apartment at the same price as long as he served continuously in Congress. Mr. Tinkham assented. Since then he has been returned continuously to the House by his Boston constituency. "Foresight!" He answers, "No, it was just luck." If he were defeated the owner of the property would be able to get twice the present rental.

Gallatin, Mo., after a lapse of 50 years has again been visited by bank robbers, and about the only difference in methods is the difference between Jesse James' saddle horse and the modern bandit's roadster.

GIVING TO THE CHURCH

Outwardly the religious life of the people of the United States is represented by $2,000,000,000 worth of property and a current annual expense of administration of about $250,000,000. Considered from a purely business point of view, the church is one of the nation's outstanding enterprises.

Great as are some of America's industrial corporations, few can point to such an investment as the church records. The comparison appears all the more striking when it is remembered that the church is primarily a religious and philanthropic organization and is not out for profit, states the Chicago Daily News.

Gifts to the church have increased more rapidly the past ten years than during the previous half-century. The phenomenal advance in giving indicates a changing attitude toward the material side of church work, which is highly encouraging to the 40,000,000 and more church members and the 220,000 pastors and clerical leaders.

In the old days the ice-cream social, the rummage sale of old clothes, the bazaar, the church supper and kindred money making devices were regularly listed among the necessary activities for raising the pastor's salary. Faithful housewives worked themselves to the point of exhaustion in preparing appetizing chicken suppers which the community conscientiously devoured at 25 cents a head and thereafter considered that it had done its duty by the church. Meantime, when the collection plate was passed at services, the church members would drop their pennies into the receptacle and lustily sing, "Jesus Paid It All."

A new interpretation of the meaning of giving, with a new consciousness of the spiritual value of the action, has come in the last decade. The spirit of the giver is emphasized as much as the amount of the gift. Thus giving has taken on a new aspect and consequently gifts have increased very greatly. The change has been accompanied by the adoption of the yearly budget system, with an annual canvass and the frequent oversubscriptions instead of periodic harangues and a hopelessly chronic inadequacy of funds.

DEADLY GRADE CROSSINGS

While the American Railway Association was conducting a "Careful Crossing" campaign during the four summer months, there were 4,411 accidents, an increase of 3 per cent over the number in the corresponding period in the preceding year, but it is explained that in view of the increase of 21 per cent in the number of automobiles, and of 10 per cent in the number of railway cars moved, the accident figures in reality show an improvement in conditions, says the Boston Transcript. From June 30 to September 30, there were 693 deaths in crossing accidents on the 108 railroads reporting. Twenty-four more persons were killed this year than last. Those who received non-fatal injuries numbered 1,800 as compared with 1758 last year. Here is this year's story of the deadly grade crossings as it is told in the news dispatches. It suggests the need of remedy more effective than the training in caution to be derived from safety-crossing campaigns and similar endeavors, valuable as educational effort of that kind may be.

BEAVER FARMING

Although the practicability of beaver farming has not been fully demonstrated, the United States Department of Agriculture believes that the business of raising beavers for their fur may develop, under proper control measures, into a profitable branch of fur farming. With a small beginning the enterprise seems to promise an advance to good returns and even great possibilities.

The animals should not be introduced uncontrolled into places where their activities may menace irrigation or power ditches, important road or railroad grades or agricultural districts. A suitable food supply and permanent water should be assured.

Do Your Full Duty at Charter Election Today

A very important city election takes place tomorrow, and it is the bounden duty of every loyal citizen and taxpayer to go to the polls and cast an intelligent ballot.

There are 33 candidates on the ballot, fifteen of whom are to be elected to draw and submit to the voters a new charter for our city government. That we need a new charter no one will deny who is at all posted on civic affairs. All of these candidates are splendid citizens, in whom we all have faith and friendship, but it is not so much a matter of the personality of the candidate as it is what he represents and what he stands for that counts at this election.

"Big Business" should always have a fair representation on our city council, but that it should have six out of the nine as its personal employees is altogether wrong. We do not need nine councilmen—five are plenty, and those five should be fairly representative of every interest in our city—the rich man, the poor man and the betwixt and between. The mayor should not be employed by anybody except the city, and devote all his time to the city's business, and be paid for it. This idea of people only being able to transact city business once a week, and that at night time, in a city the size and importance that Richmond now is, is more like child's play than intelligent city government. Richmond has long ago outgrown the country village class.

There are other serious and vital reasons for changes in our city charter, and the time is ripe to make them now.

The candidates have seemingly divided themselves into two groups. Those in favor of the old order of things have selected the first fifteen on the ballot as nearest to representing their moss-covered ideas and the present way of doing things, while those who believe a change is needed have selected fifteen out of the last eighteen names on the ballot. These last eighteen on the ballot, out of which you may select fifteen, ARE NOT RADICAL, but are RIGHT!

P. J. HULANISKI, Chairman Publicity Committee of the Original Charter League, endorsing the last eighteen names of candidates on the ballot.

Salts if Backache and Kidneys Hurt

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your bladder troubles you

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney regions it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and leggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, headache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to cleanse and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

Sulphur Is Best To Clear Up Ugly Skin

Irritation and Breaking Out Often Healed Over Night, Says Skin Specialist

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Menthosulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly ridges skin from the itching, burning and irritation. Menthosulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Menthosulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.—Adv.

A Little Christmas Story

A few days before last Christmas a man walked into an investment department and purchased five shares of 7 per cent Preferred Stock. He requested that it be issued in the name of a young lady, paid for the certificate, and said:

"I saw your advertisement suggesting the Preferred Shares of your Company as a Christmas gift. I am engaged to marry a charming young woman and wished to make her a substantial present, but I felt that such a gift as your Investment Shares might not please a woman as would some attractive article of more or less perishable value.

"Eventually I decided to make a test case of your gift suggestion. If my fiancée is pleased with an enduring and sensible gift of this kind and does not immediately sell the shares, I will know that she has the right idea of thrift and of providing for future years, and is the right kind of a woman for my wife."

"We were sufficiently interested to follow up this incident. The results were even better than the young man hoped. Not only was his Christmas present received with enthusiasm, but within a month the lady who later became his wife purchased ten additional shares with her own funds.

SYNOPSIS

PROLOGUE—Seeking gold in the desert, "Cameron," a solitary prospector, forms a partnership with an unknown man whom he later learns is Jonas Warren, father of a girl whom Cameron wronged, but later married, back in Illinois. Cameron's explanations appease Warren, and the two proceed together. Taking refuge from a sandstorm in a cave, Cameron discovers gold, but too late, both men are dying. Cameron leaves evidence in the cave, of their discovery of gold, and personal documents.

CHAPTER I—Richard Gale, adventurer, in Castia, Mexican border town, meets George Thorne, lieutenant in the Ninth cavalry, old college friend. Thorne tells Gale he is to save Mercedes Castaneda, Spanish girl, his affianced wife, from Rojas, Mexican bandit.

CHAPTER II—Gale's "roughhouse" Rojas and his gang, with the help of two American cowboys, and he, Mercedes and Thorne escape. A bugle call from the fort orders Thorne to his regiment. He leaves Mercedes under Gale's protection.

CHAPTER V—Mercedes gets word to Thorne of her safety. Dick also writes to his parents, informing them of his whereabouts. Nell's personality, and her kindness, attract him.

CHAPTER VI—Riding the range, Gale falls in with a party of three Mexican raiders encamped at a water hole. Watching his opportunity to out them, he sees two Indians ride into the camp. One of them, a Yaqui, is evidently badly wounded, and the Mexicans seek to kill him in a cruel way. Dick drives them off, conveying the wounded Yaqui to Belding's ranch.

CHAPTER VII—The Indian is taken in, cared for and remains in Belding's service, becoming Dick's ardent admirer. Gale's admiration for Nell increases, and he believes she is not averse to his intentions. Belding's horses, thoroughbred, the pride of his life, after his wife and stepdaughter, are run off by Mexicans.

CHAPTER VIII—Gale, with Ladd, Lash and the Yaqui, pursue the raiding party over the desert, finally cornering them. Five of the six thieves are killed and the party of whites with the recovered horses, return to the ranch in triumph.

CHAPTER IX—Gale secures from Mrs. Belding what he feels is reluctant permission to allow him to seek Nell in the country. He begins his courtship with energy, confident that he can win her. "Shore I mean, to tell you just that there," replied the ranger. "I'll ride your Blanco Devil as he never was left before, 'cept once when a d—n sight better hossman than I am couldn't make him outrun Sol."

Without more words the men saddled and were off. The interminable time that followed contained for Gale about as much suspense as he could well bear. What astonished him and helped him greatly to fight off actual distress was the endurance of Nell's mother.

Early on the morning of the second day, Gale saw three white horses and a bay come wearily stepping down the road. He heard Blanco Sol's familiar whistle, and he leaped up wild with joy. The horse was riderless. Gale's sudden joy received a violent check, then resurged when he saw a limp form in Jim Lash's arms. Ladd was supporting a horseman who wore a military uniform.

Gale shouted with joy and ran into the house to tell the good news. It was the ever-thoughtful Mrs. Belding who prevented him from rushing to tell Mercedes.

Lash handed down a ragged, travel-stained, man girl into Belding's arms. "Dad! Mamma!"

It was indeed a repentant Nell, but there was spirit yet in the tired blue eyes. Then she caught sight of Gale and gave him a faint smile.

"Hello—Dick."

"Nell!" Gale reached for her hand held it tightly, and found speech difficult.

"You needn't worry—about your old horse," she said, as Belding carried her toward the door. "Oh, Dick! Blanco Sol is glorious!"

Gale turned to greet his friend. In deed, it was but a haggard ghost of the cavalryman. Thorne looked ill or wounded. Gale's greeting was also a question full of fear.

Thorne's answer was a faint smile. He seemed ready to drop from the saddle. Gale helped Ladd hold Thorne upon the horse until they reached the house. Belding came out again. His welcome was checked as he saw the condition of the cavalryman. Thorne reeled into Dick's arms. But he was able to stand and walk.

"I'm not—hurt. Only weak—starved," he said. "Is Mercedes—take me to her?"

"She'll be well the minute she sees him," averred Belding, as he and Gale led the cavalryman to Mercedes' room. There they left him, and Gale at last felt his ears ringing with the girl's broken cry of joy.

When Belding and Gale hurried forth again the rangers were tending the tired horses. Upon returning to the house Jim Lash calmly lit his pipe, and Ladd declared that, hungry as he was, he had to tell his story.

"Shore, Beldin," began Ladd, "I was funny about Diablo, catfish Blanco Sol. Funny ain't the word. I rode in Sol's tracks all the way to Castia. Never seen a rebel or a raider till I got to town. I went straight to the camp of the cavalry men, an' found them just coolin' off an' dreamin' down their hosses after what looked to me like a big ride."

"Some soldier took me to an officer's tent. Nell was there, some white as Thorne was there, too, an' he was head worked over by the camp doctor. I didn't ask no questions, because I seen quiet was needed round that tent. After satisfying myself that Nell was all right, an' Thorne in no danger, I went out.

"Shore there was so darn many fellers who wanted to an' tried to tell me what'd come off, I thought I'd never find out. But I got the story piece by piece. An' here's what happened:

"Nell rode Blanco Sol a-tearin' into camp, an' had a crowd round her in a jiffy. She told who she was, where she'd come from, an' what she wanted. Well, it seemed a day or so before Nell got there the cavalrymen had heard word of Thorne. You see, Thorne had left camp on leave of absence some time before. In a few more days it turned out pretty sure that for some reason Rojas was holdin' Thorne."

"Now, it happened when this news came Colonel Weede was in Nogales with his staff, an' the officer left in charge didn't know how to proceed. Rojas' camp was across the line in Mexico, an' ridin' over there was serious business. It meant a whole lot more than just scatterin' one Greaser camp. Thorne's feller soldiers was anxious to get him out of a bad fix, but they had to wait for orders."

"When Nell found out Thorne was held starved an' beat in a dobe shack no more'n two mile across the line, she shore stirred up that cavalry camp. Shore! She told them soldiers Rojas was holdin' Thorne—fortuin' him to make him tell where Mercedes was. An' she begged the cavalrymen to rescue Thorne."

"From the way it was told to me I reckon them cavalrymen went up in the air. Fine fery lot of young bloods, I thought, achin' for a scrap. But the officer in charge, bein' in a ticklish place, still held out for higher orders."

"Then Nell broke loose. You all know Nell's tongue is sometimes like a cholla thorn. I'd have give something to see her work up that soldier thift. Can't you fellers see her on Blanco Sol with her eyes, turnin' black?"

Ladd mopped his sweaty face with his dusty scarf. He was beaming. He was growing excited, hurried in his narrative.

"Right out then Nell swore she'd go after Thorne. If them cavalrymen couldn't ride with a western girl to save a brother American—let them hang back! One feller, under orders, tried to stop Blanco Sol. An' that feller invited himself to the hospital. Then the cavalrymen went flyin' for their hosses. It didn't take long for every man in that camp to get wind of what was comin' off. Shore they must have been wild. They strung out after Nell in a thunderin' troop."

"Rojas and his men vamoose'd without a shot. That ain't surprise! There wasn't a shot fired by anybody. The cavalrymen soon found Thorne an' hurried with him back on Uncle Sam's land. Thorne was half naked, black an' blue all over, thin as a rail. He was given food an' drink. Shore he seemed a starved man. But he picked up wonderfull, an' by the time Jim came along he was wantin' to start for Forlorin River. So was Nell. By main strength as much as persuasion we kept the two men quiet till next evenin' at dark."

"Well, we made as sneaky a start in the dark as Jim an' me could manage, an' never hit the trail till we was miles from town. Thorne's nerve held him up for a while. Then all at once he tumbled out of his saddle. We got him back, an' Lash held him on. Nell didn't give out till daybreak."

As Ladd paused in his story Belding began to stuffer, and finally he exploded. His mighty utterances were incoherent. But plainly the wrath he had felt toward the willful girl was forgotten. Gale remained gripped by silence.

"Laddy, what knocks me is Rojas holdin' Thorne prisoner, tryin' to make him tell where Mercedes had been hidden," said Belding.

"Shore. It'd knock anybody."

"The hand'll crazy over her. That's the Spanish of it," replied Belding, his voice rolling. "Rojas loves Mercedes as he hates her. He wants this girl only to have her, then kill her. It's a—n strange, boys, and even with Thorne here our troubles have just begun."

"You spoke correct," said Jim Ladd, in his cool drawl.

"Shore I'm not sayin' what I think," added Ladd. But the look of him was not indicative of a tranquil optimism.

Thorne was put to bed in Gale's room. He was very weak, yet he would keep Mercedes' hand and gaze at her with unbelieving eyes. Then, fighting sleep with what little strength he had left, at last he succumbed.

For all Dick could ascertain his friend never stirred an eyelash nor a finger for twenty-seven hours. When he awoke he was pale, weak, but the old Thorne.

"Hello, Dick; I didn't dream it, then," he said. "There you are, an' my darling with the proud, dark eyes—she's here? Mercedes is well—safe! Oh! . . . But say, I haven't a dollar to my name. I had a lot of money, Dick, and those robbers stole it, my watch—everything. D—n that little black Greaser!"

"Cher up, Belding will make you a proposition presently. The future smiles, old friend. If this rebel business was only ended!"

"Dick, you're going to be my savior twice over. . . . Well, now, listen to me." His gay excitement changed to earnest gravity. "I want to marry Mercedes at once. Is there a padre here?"

"Yes. But are you wise in letting any Mexican, even a priest, know Mercedes is hidden in Forlorin River?"

"It couldn't be hidden long."

Gale was compelled to acknowledge the truth of this statement.

"I'll marry her first, then I'll face my problem. Fetch the padre, Dick. And ask our kind friends to be witnesses at the ceremony."

Much to Gale's surprise, neither Belding nor Ladd objected to the idea of bringing a padre into the household, and thereby making known to at least one Mexican the whereabouts of Mercedes Castaneda. Belding's caution was wearing out in wrath at the persistent unsettled condition of the border, and Ladd grew only the cooler and more silent as possibilities of trouble multiplied.

Gale fetched the padre, a little, weakened, timid man who was old and without interest or penetration. Apparently he married Mercedes and Thorne as he told his beads or mumbled a prayer. It was Mrs. Belding who kept the occasion from being a merry one, and she insisted on not exciting Thorne. Gale marked her unusual pallor and the singular depth and sweetness of her voice.

Thorne could not be kept in bed, and all in a day, it seemed, he grew so well and so hungry that his friends were delighted, and Mercedes was radiant. In a few days his weakness disappeared and he was going the round of the fields and looking over the ground marked out in Gale's plan of water development. Thorne was highly enthusiastic, and at once staked out his claim for one hundred and sixty acres of land adjoining that of Belding and the rangers. These five tracts took in all the ground necessary for their operations, but in case of the success of the irrigation project the idea was to increase their squatter holding by purchase of more land down the valley. A hundred families had lately moved to Forlorin River; more were coming all the time; and Belding vowed he could see a vision of the whole Altar valley green with farms.

Meanwhile everybody in Belding's household, except the quiet Ladd and the watchful Yaqui, in the absence of disturbance of any kind along the border, grew freer and more unrestrained, as if anxiety was slowly fading in the peace of the present. Jim Lash made a trip to the Sonoyta oasis, and Ladd patrolled fifty miles of the line eastward without incident or sight of raiders. Evidently all the border hawks were in at the picking of Castia.

The February nights were cold, with a dry, icy, penetrating coldness that made a warm fire most comfortable. Belding's household congregated in the sitting room, where burning mesquite logs crackled in the open fireplace.

There came a low knock at the door. It may have been an ordinary knock, for it did not disturb the women; but to Belding and his rangers it had a subtle meaning.

"Who's that?" asked Belding, as he slowly pushed back his chair and looked at Ladd.

"Yaqui," replied the ranger.

"Come in," called Belding.

The door opened, and the short, square, powerfully built Indian entered. He carried a rifle and strode with impressive dignity.

"Yaqui, what do you want?" asked Belding, and repeated his question in Spanish.

"Senor Dick," replied the Indian.

Gale jumped up, stifling an exclamation, and he went outdoors with Yaqui. The Indian's presence was always one of gloom, and now his stern action boded catastrophe. Once clear of trees he pointed to the level desert across the river, where a row of campfires shone bright out of the darkness.

"Raiders!" ejaculated Gale.

Then he cautioned Yaqui to keep sharp lookout, and hurriedly returning to the house, he called the men.

"Heedless Moths" Stars Art Model at the Macdonald

A question that few motion-picture productions have dared to touch—that of physical attraction of women to men whose ideals are supposed to elevate them above human passion, has been presented in a six-reel photoplay that reveals life in a certain portion of society that no other picture has yet touched upon.

The startling photoplay called "Heedless Moths" and stars the world's most renowned beauty and artist model—Audrey Munson, whose experiences within the walls of artists' dens have recently filled the press and taken the country by surprise.

"Heedless Moths," which opened at the Macdonald theater last night, is the first picture that devotes itself to the trials and pitfalls that surround every step of an innocent artist's model. The struggles of every young girl to preserve her honor are disclosed by Audrey Munson, who enacts her own experiences before us.

That artists are not always to blame for the temptation that confronts them when they view their subjects—particularly when the subject happens to be a girl as perfect in face and figure as Miss Munson—is shown dramatically in the dazzling scenes of this photoplay. The triumph of the higher artists against their animal instincts is finally depicted, and the unmistakable message of the picture—Art for Art's Sake—is brought out irresistibly at the end.

Wally Reid Today at T. & D. Theater

Wallace Reid's latest Paramount picture, "The Ghost Breaker," which is at the Richmond T. & D. theater today is one of the most thrilling offerings in which that popular star has been seen in many months. Lila Lee and Walter Hiers are featured with the star.

"The Ghost Breaker" is a melodrama with modern trimmings. There is a wonderful old Spanish castle in Aragon, which is peopled with ghosts, a lovely Spanish girl (Lila Lee) who is much annoyed by the ghostly visitants; a young and red-blooded hero, played by Mr. Reid, who bumps into a feud in a visit to Kentucky, just because he happens to be a remote branch of the Jarvis family; a funny colored servant, Rusty Snow, which will introduce Walter Hiers as a black face artist; feud scenes; a thrilling fight in an elevator of a New York Hotel; a chase after a liner; scenes in mid-ocean aboard the liner; some fine pastoral effects and so on. All of which supplies color in plenty, as well as thrills galore.

Hudson and Essex Cars Still Lead, Says J. P. Strom

Hudson and Essex cars again lead. A careful check of the new cars, costing over $1,000 here, sold during the past month, shows the Hudson and Essex cars again leading in Contra Costa county.

This is the fourth consecutive month that these cars have led in new car sales in this county, said J. P. Strom, agent in Richmond for these popular cars.

November is generally a quiet month in the automobile business, but J. P. Strom reports a month's business only exceeded by August. This certainly reflects the confidence of the people in Richmond, in the cars, his organization, and in his past reputation of doing business.

Government For Richmond By Richmond People

The Conservative Charter League's Fifteen Candidates for Places on the Board of Freeholders at today's election stand for a Richmond charter promoted and favored by Richmond residents and property owners and not by outsiders.

They stand first, last and all the time for economy in city government and will not increase the amount, which by law, the property can be mortgaged by bond issues.

They have not promised the job of chief of police, city attorney, or any other office to any man or men in an effort to get them to work for a change in the city government.

They will be open to suggestions by you as to what should go into the organic laws of the city on which depends to a large extent the amount of taxes you may be called upon to assume over the next several years.

They have no axes to grind for anybody and have not prepared any charter in advance of their election. They will be guided by the wishes of the majority of the people of Richmond.

The first fifteen candidates on the ballot have not prepared in advance any dose of cure-alls for all of the "evils" of municipal government, and will advise with the public and not attempt to put over any scheme of government born in the brains of men who do not live here and who, while making their money out of Richmond, will not live here.

Scantily-Clad Russians Facing Death in New Form—Hoover Has Plan to Check Newest Menace

Through the American Relief Administration, the people of America are being offered an opportunity to help offset an aftermath of the famine in Russia which is almost as grave as were the famine itself and the epidemics which followed. The newest form of aid is a "Clothing Remittance," clothing being as urgently needed as were American food and medicine to save millions of Russian children and adults.

Salvation Army Head Pleased at Richmond Reception

The visit to this city last Sunday of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Crawford and 25 cadets of the Salvation Army proved pleasurable and profitable to every one concerned.

"We were delighted at the public's kind reception of our visitors. The meeting at Labor Temple in the afternoon was particularly successful," Capt. B. C. Turner, in charge of the Salvation Army work in Richmond, told the Record-Herald.

At Labor Temple, Chairman B. G. Warrington, of the striking shop-crafts, gave hearty voice to the thanks of the labor unions for the afternoon's visit.

Danville Bandit Visited Martinez

Martinez, Dec. 11.—That Paul Hiner, bank bandit, who was slain in Oakland following the robbery of the San Ramon Valley bank in Danville on Wednesday afternoon, was in Martinez several days two weeks ago, was the statement on Friday afternoon of Henry Saunders, barber at the De Lux shop on Main street.

Saunders recognized the bandit from the picture appearing in the Gazette on Friday afternoon.

When Saunders saw the picture he declared that he had seen Hiner about Martinez several days and recalled hearing him called Paul.

Man Dies When Car Turns Turtle

Crushed under an overturned automobile Sunday, Dominic Gallo, business man of Valona, died while a friend was attempting to obtain help.

The accident occurred between Pinole and Rodeo while Gallo was on his way to Pinole with Jess Garcia, also of Valona, in Garcia's car. It was raining heavily and the car skidded on a curve in the highway, turned over and landed in the ditch. Garcia escaped unhurt and started for assistance.

The body was taken to Richmond by Deputy Coroner Fred Mass of that city. Gallo was about 45 and unmarried.

MORE LIGHT NEEDED

It was a sleepy New England village and its fire company was anything but up-to-date. One night a fire was announced by the violent ringing of the fire bells and the sleepy fire fighters arrived at the scene of action to find the building wreathed in smoke. No flames were visible from the outside.

The captain of the company made a careful survey and then calmly lit his pipe.

"We'd better leave it alone and let it burn up a bit," he said, "then we'll be able to see what we are doing."

WOMEN'S WOES

Richmond Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with aching pains and many aches from kidney ills. Keeping the kidneys well has spared thousands of women much misery. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that is endorsed by people you know:

Mrs. J. A. Heck, motorman, 427 Nineteenth street, Richmond, says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone in need of a kidney remedy. About a year ago I had attacks of backache and felt dull and miserable. The action of my kidneys was irregular and caused me lots of annoyance. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them from La Moine's Drug Store, and their use soon relieved the trouble. I was free from backaches and kidney complaint."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Heck had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

BRIDGE RIVALS BID FOR FAVOR AT MARTINEZ

MARTINEZ, Dec. 11.—Over one hundred representatives of the three companies seeking a franchise for the construction of a bridge across Carquinez Straits, were present at the hearing before the Board of Supervisors today.

The hearing opened before the Board of Supervisors in Department No. 1 of the Superior Court.

Prior to the meeting, W. J. Buchanan, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, stated that no action on granting the franchise will be taken before the 8th of January.

"It is the purpose of the Board of Supervisors to consider carefully not alone the plans of the applicants but the financial ability of each company to proceed with the construction of the bridge," said Mr. Buchanan.

The three companies seeking a franchise for the construction of the bridge are the Dillon's Point Development Company, The San Francisco Transit Company and The Rodeo-Vallejo Ferry Company.

The Dillon's Point Development Company, being the first to apply for the bridge franchise, opened on Monday, giving testimony as to the financial plans for the construction.

W. F. Duffy, a director of the company and vice president of the French-American bank of San Francisco, was called to the stand by Attorney M. R. Jones, representing the Dillon's Point Development Co.

Duffy stated that since the former meeting of the Board on the 6th of November, the W. S. Strauss Company of Chicago, a real estate, mortgage and bond company, had become interested in the project. He also declared that the proposed bridge was considered a sound business proposition in banking circles.

During the questioning of Duffy he stated that no estimate had been made of the actual cost of the bridge proposed by the Dillon's Point Development Company.

R. H. Reardon, Deputy United States Attorney General and representing W. S. Strauss, stated when called to testify, that a representative of the Eastern house, the firm is interested in the plan of the Dillon's Point Development Company.

Following the testimony of Reardon the Dillon's Point Company concluded its testimony and Captain George Wheeler was called to the stand by Attorney J. E. Rodgers representing the Rodeo-Vallejo Ferry Company.

Captain Wheeler stated that as a master mariner for 31 years he has on many occasions navigated Carquinez Straits and declared that the proposed bridge of the Rodeo-Vallejo Company would prove no detriment to the California-Hawaiian Sugar Refining Corporation and in no way would prove a menace to navigation opposite the docks of the sugar company.

Captain Wheeler declared there were no treacherous currents adjacent to the sugar company and stated that in his opinion any ship of the type used by the sugar company could be docked at the refinery and the proposed bridge would not prove a menace or hindrance to shipping.

Captain Wheeler declared that the straits of Carquinez are much wider at points than the dredged parts of the straits opposite Mare Island, where, he stated he has navigated large vessels for many years.

Captain Wheeler stated that he has been in the employ of the Rodeo-Vallejo Ferry Company navigating ferry steamers since last March. Prior to that he was in the employ of the Six Minute Ferry Company.

The hearing was resumed before the Supervisors at 1:30 in the afternoon and Rear Admiral J. B. McKean, commandant at the Mare Island Navy Yard was the first to be called to the stand.

Admiral McKean declared that the bridge proposed would not prove a menace to navigation. He stated that the bridge at that point would prove an advantage to the Navy Yard and would be an asset for naval and military operations.

Elks Plan Big Xmas For Kids

The snow-capped peaks of Seattle, Washington, will furnish the tree for the Christmas celebration scheduled by the Richmond Elks for December 20, when 5,000 kiddies of the city and surrounding districts will be the guests of the order and of Santa Claus at an outdoor party and celebration at Tenth street and Nevin avenue. Thirty feet high and decorated with bright lights, tinsel and holiday novelties, the tree will be a brilliant mass of color and a fitting center for the groups of children who will attend.

A band concert, vaudeville stunts, choral singing and other appropriate features will precede the presentation of gifts from the tree. Children of grammar school age or younger will find gifts on the tree as well as candy and other "goodies."

San Pablo, El Cerrito, Stege, Giant, Pinole and Winehaven will send large groups of children to participate in the festivities. All children of the county are invited to the celebration.

Gifts for the tree will be purchased in Richmond as well as the candy which will be distributed. The affair is being financed from funds raised at the recent charity circus of the Elks.

John A. Bell, general chairman of the event, announces the following committees as working for the success of the party:

Entertainment—D. J. Shaw, Carl Richard and A. M. Irwin.
Christmas tree and decorations—J. J. Gilmore, George Searcy and D. A. Burns.

Gifts and arrangements—F. W. Canning, J. R. Garvin, Fred Lutz and Will Robinson.

Electrical display—Clarence Foote, Roy LeMoin and P. R. Brown.

If Hair is Turning Gray, Use Sage Tea

Don't look old! Try Grandmother's recipe to darken and beautify faded, streaked hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

The post office building was constructed last year by the attorneys and leased for a long term to the United States government.

Drab Little Girl Turns Butterfly

"What do you know about Lydia. She tells me she has a date to go to dinner and then go to the theater with Jack tonight. Imagine! He's the sweetest thing. I hope she dresses better than she does in the office or she will disgrace a gorgeous man."

"Oh, my dear, Lydia is a regular little Cinderella. You'd never know it was the same girl. She dresses beautifully when goes out in the evening. Perfect gloves, perfect shoes, dress and coat, and all the rest. She looks like she had stepped from a bandbox."

"Well, that's too much for me to take in, and she's worn the same little old suit and hat to the office for two years."

"She says she can't afford good work clothes and play clothes both, so she prefers the latter. She is very popular and very good looking when she's dressed up."

"Well, that's a blow to me. I am consumed with curiosity to see her. Where does she buy all these lovely clothes, anyway?"

"Practically everything at Cherry's at 515 Thirteenth street. They have lovely dresses and coats and very fashionable suits. One can't help looking stylish if one buys there. And the best thing about Cherry's is that they allow one to buy on credit. They permit one to make practically any arrangements for payments they choose."
